Story of 'Brotherhood' revolves around a pair of twin brothers whose different attitude towards human relationships set apart their fates. Despite sharing the same background, they grow up having different careers and love lives.

At the age of ten, a pair of twin brothers, He Ping (Christopher Lee) and He Fun (Jordan Chan) followed their parents from Hong Kong to Singapore. The fate of the family takes a tragic twist when a wealthy woman, Zhong Xian (Wang Yuxiang), falls madly in love with the boys' father, but is spurned by him. Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned, nor hell a fury like a woman scorned. Zhong Xian sets out to disfigure the boy's mother, resulting in the death of both the husband and wife.

The elder twin, He Ping, grows up mindful of how his parents were killed and harbours thoughts of revenge on Zhong Xian and her father. He decides to start a business to strike it rich to expedite his revenge plans. However, his business almost folds. It is during this time that He Ping saves Zhong Mei, who turns out to be Zhong Xian's precious daughter. History repeats itself; Zhong Mei falls madly in love with He Ping.

He Fun, on the other hand, grows up in the shadow of his elder brother. Although he appears to be laid back and useless, He Fun eventually outshines his brother with his quiet determination to succeed in life.
